

A photograph of a large stone archway leading to a green lawn and a statue. The archway is made of dark stone with lighter-colored stone in the keystone. The archway is illuminated from within, casting a warm glow. The view through the archway shows a green lawn, a statue on a pedestal, and trees in the background. The sky is clear and blue.

FACULTY

David Mauro

Professor of Mathematics

You are an exceptional, accessible professor who takes the time to make sure that all students grasp challenging concepts, and your selfless service to Trinity, including as chair of the Mathematics Department, has been exemplary.

Taikang Ning

Professor of Engineering

You are a dedicated mentor and a champion of engineering at the college, serving as an engaging and challenging teacher who provides research opportunities for your students, many of whom credit you for their successes after Trinity.

STAFF

John J. Dlugosz

Learning Space Manager and Media Technology Specialist

You shared your technical expertise and creative solutions, ensuring Trinity's smooth transition to remote teaching and learning during the pandemic, and for nearly 20 years, you have offered computer support of countless campus events and classes.

Tom Fuscillo

Assistant Vice President, Construction, Facilities, and Operations

With leadership and genuine care, you played an instrumental role in the college's response to the COVID-19 pandemic, and you have shown your staunch support of Trinity's strategic plan, Summit, through the implementation of a campuswide sustainability plan.

Kristen J. Noone M'07

Associate Director of Athletics for Compliance and Student-Athlete Welfare

You serve as the senior woman administrator in athletics, offering your mentorship of younger coaches and showing your tireless dedication to strengthening the athletics programs and to active service within the broader campus community.

Georgene "Gigi" St. Peter

Administrative Assistant, History Department

You possess an in-depth knowledge of the college, and you have shared your generosity of spirit and attentiveness to the needs of your colleagues and Trinity students for more than three decades.

Jaymie Dawn Bianca*Class of 2021*

You have been engaged on campus, in Hartford, and across the state and country, and you are committed to academic excellence, maintaining a nearly perfect GPA across your triple majors of English, educational studies, and human rights studies.

Vanessa Ross*Class of 2021*

You have dedicated your time to serving as a leader and role model for future Trinity students, and you are actively engaged in bridging diverse communities on campus, all while exhibiting academic prowess in your biology major and classical antiquity minor.

Jeffrey P. Sagun*Class of 2021*

You possess resilience and enthusiasm about the liberal arts college experience, an unwavering commitment to fostering knowledge and leadership among groups of scholars across the globe, and dedication to academic excellence in your major of neuroscience.

Ana Stambolic*Class of 2021*

You hold an exceptional record of service to the campus community and exhibit remarkable poise as a global representative of Trinity, and you have demonstrated your commitment to your scholarly pursuits in political science and human rights studies.

Sonia Cardenas

THE THOMAS CHURCH BROWNELL PRIZE FOR TEACHING EXCELLENCE

2020—Cheryl L. Greenberg*Paul E. Raether Distinguished Professor of History*

You bring an unbridled enthusiasm and earnestness to your role as an educator, treating your students as intellectuals with autonomy over their learning and making them believe in their ability to excel.

2021—Stefanie Chambers*Professor of Political Science*

You are a committed teacher-mentor who encourages students to engage and grow beyond the classroom, and, this year in particular, you have demonstrated that liberal arts teaching extends beyond the boundaries of the classroom.

2021—Erik Vogt*Gwendolyn Miles Smith Professor of Philosophy*

You possess a unique combination of intelligence, passion, good humor, and kindness; you share enduring knowledge and teach skills that allow students to navigate our complex and changing world.

THE DEAN ARTHUR H. HUGHES AWARD FOR ACHIEVEMENT IN TEACHING

2020—Michael Grubb*Assistant Professor of Psychology*

You are a true mentor and adviser, and your excitement and rigor, both in the classroom and lab, have earned you the recognition of your students, who praise your unfailing ability to inspire, guide, and support them.

2021—Benjamin C. Carbonetti*Visiting Lecturer in Political Science and Human Rights*

You build up your students inside and outside of the classroom, going above and beyond to help them produce their best work and inspiring them to pursue further study in human rights.

2021—Amber L. Pitt*Assistant Professor of Environmental Science and Biology*

You are an engaging teacher and scholar who always displays curiosity, compassion, and joy; you demonstrate fieldwork as an extension of the classroom and teach students to apply scientific thinking to the real world.

THE CHARLES A. DANA RESEARCH PROFESSORSHIP AWARD

2021—Dario A. Euraque

Professor of History and International Studies

You are a world-renowned expert on Central America, especially Honduras, where you once served as director of the Honduran Institute of Anthropology and History. At Trinity since 1990, you also are the co-director of Trinity's Center for Caribbean Studies.

THE CHARLES A. DANA RESEARCH ASSOCIATE PROFESSORSHIP AWARD

2021—Kifah Hanna

Associate Professor of Language and Culture Studies

Your research focuses on 20th- and 21st-century Arabic literature, especially the writings of Arab women and questions of gender and sexuality; you were the recipient of the Dean Arthur H. Hughes Award for Achievement in Teaching in 2014.

2021—Laura J. Holt

Associate Professor of Psychology

A Trinity alumna, you are the principal investigator for a major grant from the National Institutes of Health/National Institute on Drug Abuse; you also won the Dean Arthur H. Hughes Award for Achievement in Teaching in 2011.

2020 HONORANDS

James Hanley and Peter McMorris

Bachelor of Arts

JAMES HANLEY

PETER MCMORRIS

In 2020, you celebrated the 50th anniversary of Cinestudio, the classic movie palace you co-founded on the Trinity College campus when you were undergraduate students here in 1970. The not-for-profit independent film theater—housed in the Clement Chemistry Building—is a magnificent single-screen venue that today remains one of the most highly regarded art house cinemas in the country.

You each traveled a unique journey to Trinity. Peter, from a small town in Jamaica, you moved at age 8 to the Acton neighborhood in London, not far from where James lived in Ealing, yet the two of you wouldn't meet until you both arrived in Hartford. When your family moved to New York City, you attended DeWitt Clinton High School in the Bronx, which boasts many alumni celebrated in the arts, including James Baldwin and Stan Lee. At 16, you secured a full scholarship to Trinity, where you majored in math and played on the soccer team.

James, seeing This Is Cinerama as a child made such an impact on you that you would climb out of your bedroom window to sneak off to a local theater to watch movies. After working in television and studying to be a Russian interpreter, you decided to try breaking into the film industry and had jobs with directors including John Schlesinger and Stanley Kubrick. You were working in Los Angeles when you learned you had earned a scholarship to Trinity, where you studied Russian and French.

During the politically active time on campus in the late 1960s, the two of you became friends through the Trinity Film Society. A search for a movie-screening venue led you to the chemistry auditorium, where you discovered a projection booth and hung bedsheets as your first screen. When Cinestudio opened to the public in February 1970, tickets sold out, and it soon developed a reputation for its selection of powerful films and professional-quality presentation.

Starting and running Cinestudio—with the help of now-retired professor Larry Stires—took up most of your time, leading you both to eventually stop taking classes. Nevertheless, you remained on campus to manage Cinestudio—first as volunteers who worked at outside jobs, then as the theater's co-executive directors—transforming it into one of Hartford's longest-running cultural institutions.

Cinestudio continues to be run largely by student workers and volunteers and supported by dedicated patrons. Meanwhile, you have helped facilitate renovations to maintain the theater's world-class projection and sound quality. Cinestudio has hosted festivals featuring silent films, Hollywood classics, and independent movies, as well as the April in Paris French film festival, the Connecticut LGBTQ Film Festival, the Reel Youth Hartford Film Festival for local high school students, and Trinity Film Festival, a national platform for undergraduate filmmakers. Cinestudio also has worked with outside groups and Trinity faculty to screen films that foster social, environmental, and racial discussions.

James, after retiring as co-executive director of Cinestudio last year, you still serve on its Board of Directors and train the theater's next projectionists. You have more time to travel with your husband, Norman Garrick, whom you met at the first LGBTQ Film Festival.

Peter, in 1992, you married one of Cinestudio's former student managers, Christine McCarthy '79. You have two children, Lauren Elmore and Devlin McMorris, and you still work as the executive director of Cinestudio.

You both, of course, remain dedicated cinephiles and fixtures around campus.

In recognition of your long-standing contributions to the arts at Trinity College and in the Hartford community—and for your dedication to passing along the love of seeing movies in a theater to new generations—I have the honor of presenting you, James Hanley, and you, Peter McMorris, for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, honoris causa.

2020 HONORAND

Francisco L. Borges, Class of 1974

Doctor of Humane Letters

Your life, it seems, has revolved around investments—in your career, both in how you approach it and in what you do; in your community; and in your college alma mater.

You now serve as chair and managing partner of Landmark Partners, an institutional alternative investment management firm that specializes in private equity, real estate, and infrastructure secondary market acquisitions. You joined Landmark as president in 1999, after six years as managing director of Financial Guaranty Insurance Company, a division of GE Capital Services.

Prior to holding the Financial Guaranty position, you also made an investment of your expertise in the State of Connecticut and the City of Hartford. From 1987–93, you served as the state’s 78th treasurer, a position to which you were elected twice. Your civic involvement in Hartford’s North End led to your 1981 election to the city council; during your first term, you chaired the Planning, Development, and Zoning Committee. After your 1983 reelection, you were selected to serve as deputy mayor.

A native of the Cape Verde Islands, you came to Trinity via New Haven, Connecticut, where you were raised. Once on campus, you were invested in the life of the college, actively participating in student government activities—a foreshadowing of your future involvement in politics—and the Trinity Coalition of Blacks. You also played freshman football and basketball. After graduating with a B.A. in political science, you moved on to the University of Connecticut School of Law, earning a J.D. in 1983. You began your legal career at The Travelers Insurance Companies.

You currently serve as chair of the board of Assured Guaranty Ltd. and the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation and as lead director of Jefferies Financial Group, as well as a trustee of Selected/Clipper Funds, Hartford HealthCare, and Millbrook School. You are a former member of the board of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Connecticut Public Broadcasting, University of Connecticut Health Center and School of Medicine, and the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving.

Your investment in Trinity has been steadfast. You have served on the Board of Trustees and as a member of your Reunion Gift Committee. You have been recognized for your service with the Alumni Medal for Excellence and the Trinity Club of Hartford Person of the Year Award. In 2018, you also were included on Trinity’s Wall of Honor, which recognizes those whose philanthropy has had a profound impact at the college.

In recognition of your investment in and dedication to your career, your community, and your college, I have the honor of presenting you, Francisco L. Borges, for the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

2020 HONORAND

The Most Reverend Michael Bruce Curry

Doctor of Divinity

While many may recognize you as the passionate pastor who preached the moving sermon at the 2018 wedding of Prince Harry and Meghan Markle, your dedication and service during your lifetime bring you to your current leadership of the Episcopal Church and to this honor at Trinity College.

As you began your life’s journey in Chicago, where you were born to an Episcopal priest father and a devout Episcopal mother, it seems you were destined to lead your life of faith. After your mother died at a young age, you and your sister were raised by your father and your grandmother. They instilled in you—through their example and teachings—your Christian beliefs. You also followed your father’s lead when it came to social activism. After attending public schools in Buffalo, New York, you went on to Hobart College in Geneva, New York, graduating with high honors. You then earned a master of divinity degree from Yale Divinity School.

In 1978, you were ordained to the priesthood, and throughout your entire ministry, you have been active in issues of social justice, immigration policy, and marriage equality. You served churches in North Carolina, Ohio, and Maryland, where you had extensive involvement in the creation of networks of family day-care providers and educational centers, the founding of ecumenical summer day camps for children, and the fostering of investments in inner-city neighborhoods.

After you were elected the 11th bishop of the Diocese of North Carolina in 2000, you instituted a network of canons, deacons, and youth ministry professionals dedicated to supporting the ministry of local congregations. You also refocused the diocese on the Episcopal Church’s Millennium Development Goals through a $400,000 campaign to buy malaria nets that saved more than 100,000 lives.

In 2015, you were named the 27th presiding bishop and primate of the Episcopal Church, the first African American to hold this position. With this role, you serve as chief pastor, president and CEO, and chair of the Executive Council of the Episcopal Church.

A lifelong learner, you furthered your education with additional study at the College of Preachers, Princeton Theological Seminary, Wake Forest University, the Ecumenical Institute at St. Mary’s Seminary, and the Institute of Christian Jewish Studies.

You have penned four books—The Power of Love (2018), Following the Way of Jesus: Church’s Teachings in a Changing World (2017), Songs My Grandma Sang (2015), and Crazy Christians: A Call to Follow Jesus (2013)—and you continue to maintain a national preaching and teaching ministry as a frequent speaker at churches, cathedrals, and conferences in the United States and around the globe. You have served on the boards of several organizations, including the Task Force for Reimagining the Episcopal Church (TREC), and as chair and now honorary chair of the nonprofit Episcopal Relief & Development, whose mission is the compassionate response of the Episcopal Church to human suffering in the world. You also were a member of the Commission on Ministry in each of the three dioceses where you served.

Your numerous accolades include honorary degrees from Episcopal Divinity School; Sewanee: The University of the South; Virginia Theological Seminary; and Yale. In 2018, the Religion News Association named you religion newsmaker of the year.

Through your leadership of the Episcopal Church, you have a deep connection to Trinity and its history: the college’s founding president, Thomas Church Brownell, preceded you long ago as the church’s seventh presiding bishop. Today, nearly 200 years since the founding of the college, your commitments align with Trinity’s values of pluralism, equity, inclusion, and bold leadership in service to the world.

In recognition of your distinguished career in the Episcopal Church and your devotion to righting the wrongs in the world, I have the honor of presenting you, the Most Reverend Michael Bruce Curry, for the degree of Doctor of Divinity, honoris causa.

2020 HONORAND

Judy Dworin, Class of 1970

Doctor of Fine Arts

Judy Dworin and dance. The mere mention of one leads to the other, and the reason for that is clear.

You came to Trinity as a transfer student in the fall of 1969—the same year that Trinity opened its doors to female undergraduates—to study under Clive Thompson of the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater. He, with wife Liz Thompson, had just introduced dance to the college. As an American studies major with a focused interest in dance, you went on to complete several independent studies, including starting a dance program in a Hartford school and doing your thesis as a dance/theater performance that was filmed and broadcast by Connecticut Public Television.

Just one year after being the first woman to receive a bachelor's degree from Trinity, you played a decisive role in the college's evolution into a more balanced coed environment as you joined the predominantly male faculty to teach dance. You earned your M.A. from Goddard College and taught at Trinity for 43 years, during which time you established the dance program; co-founded the Trinity/La MaMa Performing Arts Semester Program in New York City; and helped to create the college's Department of Theater and Dance, which you chaired for many years.

While teaching at Trinity, you continued your outreach into the community, in 1989 founding the Judy Dworin Performance Project (JDPP), which you continue to lead to this day. The arts nonprofit in Hartford reaches out on stage and into the community's schools and prisons to educate and inspire. JDPP boasts three programs: the Ensemble, a collaborative team of performers who enrich public dialogue and awareness of social justice issues; Moving Matters!, which through residencies in elementary and secondary schools guides children as they develop self-knowledge and awareness, expand cognitive skills, and develop tools for resilient living; and Bridging Boundaries, which focuses on helping incarcerated individuals and their families better their communications and life skills through the arts.

Your award-winning performance work has engaged audiences internationally, in New York City, throughout New England, and at colleges and universities as well as prisons and urban schools. Your unique and challenging presentation of social justice issues has earned recognition for giving voice to those who have not been heard. You and JDPP have received numerous honors, including a 2018 Lifetime Achievement Award in the Arts from the State of Connecticut Office of the Arts. You also were recognized in 2012 as an honoree for the Connecticut Women's Hall of Fame. JDPP won the prestigious Tapestry Award for bridging diverse sectors of the community in 2010 and accolades from the Connecticut League of History and the American Association of State and Local History for various performances. You also give back to Hartford through your service as a corporator of the Hartford Public Library. Trinity recognized your achievements with its Alumni Medal for Excellence in 1982.

Now a professor emerita of theater and dance, you continue to teach a field study in a course offered through Trinity's Human Rights Studies Program that examines the intersections of the arts, prison, and human rights by involving students in a performance project with returned citizens.

You have been beloved by your students—those at Trinity and those who are or have been incarcerated—because of the ways you invite them to grow and strengthen themselves as artists and as people. You foster trust in your students, offering safe spaces in which they can explore their own creativity and all that creativity can bring to their fiber as human beings. You also are known to be profoundly generous—with your time, with your energy, and with your talents.

In recognition of your vital role in and tireless dedication to the college's dance program as well as your commitment to giving voice and inspiring social action, I have the honor of presenting you, Judy Dworin, for the degree of Doctor of Fine Arts, honoris causa.

2020 HONORANDS

Judy Dworin, Class of 1970

Doctor of Fine Arts

Elizabeth Martin Gallo, Class of 1970

Doctor of Laws

Judy Dworin. Betty Gallo. Judith Odlum Pomeroy. Roberta Russell. Just more than 50 years ago, you made history as the first four women to receive undergraduate degrees from the college. Today you are being honored for your very important collective role in Trinity's move to coeducation.

Judy, your impact on the study of dance at Trinity cannot be overstated. During your more than four decades as a member of the faculty, you played a key role in establishing the Department of Theater and Dance. Your Hartford-based nonprofit, Judy Dworin Performance Project, utilizes creative expression to—as the JDPP website extols—“examine social issues, build bridges of understanding across diverse communities, and inspire individual growth and collective action.” While retired from Trinity, you remain dedicated to JDPP and all it has to offer.

Betty, after graduating from Trinity with a B.A. in psychology while holding your infant son in your arms, you went on to lobby the Connecticut General Assembly for more than four decades on behalf of organizations that advocate for civil rights. In 1981, you established Betty Gallo & Co. to represent small nonprofits who could not afford a full-time lobbyist. You accomplished your goal, as upon your retirement in 2018, your firm—renamed Gallo & Robinson to reflect partner Kate Robinson's joining the firm in 2014—represented 43 clients, all nonprofits and civil rights organizations, including Connecticut Against Gun Violence and the Connecticut chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union. In your retirement in Massachusetts, you continue to be active in local politics, and you have said, “Raising two amazing children is the accomplishment I am most proud of, and my granddaughter is the best thing ever.”

Judith, family is front and center in your life as you have said that your greatest accomplishment was raising two exceptional daughters. At Trinity, you earned a B.A. in modern languages: Spanish, and of your time 'neath the elms, you have said, “We four women were pioneers in a sense, explorers, if you will, paving a new path.” Your individual path has featured work at Aetna and then a lifetime's worth of volunteerism, including as a docent at The Mark Twain House & Museum and as a Girl Scout troop leader, working in a high school college counseling center, and building homes with Habitat for Humanity. Yours is a family with deep Trinity ties, with your husband, two daughters, four siblings, and three in-laws among your Bantam connections. You proudly note your gratitude for your three grandsons and the hope that they, too, may be Bantams one day.

Roberta was a longtime practicing psychotherapist and licensed clinical social worker who helped countless individuals find their way through trauma and abuse, depression, eating disorders, and more. Her extensive work in the mental health arena included a decade as executive director of the Rape Crisis Center of Berkshire County in Massachusetts, where she co-authored It Happens to Boys, Too, for male victims of sexual assault. Her own journey took flight at Trinity, where she earned a B.A. and M.A. in English before earning a Ph.D. in English at the University of Connecticut and later a master's of social work at Smith College. She offered numerous professional presentations and wrote for various publications in an effort to share her knowledge with others.

In recognition of your groundbreaking accomplishments across your respective fields, I have the honor of presenting each of you—Judy Dworin, Betty Gallo, Judith Odlum Pomeroy, and posthumously, Roberta Russell—for an honorary degree: for Pomeroy and Russell, the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa; for Gallo, the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa; and for Dworin, the degree of Doctor of Fine Arts, honoris causa.

Roberta Russell passed away on January 26, 2021.*

2021 HONORAND

Jeffrey A. Flaks

Doctor of Humane Letters

As president and chief executive officer of Hartford HealthCare, you lead and inspire some 33,000 health care professionals. You oversee a $4.3 billion enterprise that includes seven acute-care hospitals and a network of interconnected health care providers, services, and facilities that, together, care for more than 1.7 million patients and customers.

A native of Connecticut, you grew up in a family where community service was considered essential. At age 16 you worked for a small pharmacy, driving a Chevy Chevette around New Haven, delivering medications to nursing homes, physician's offices, and community hospitals. You were struck by the empathy and care that providers showed for the people they served. In college, you interned at Yale New Haven Hospital's emergency department. With a stopwatch in hand, you conducted time and motion studies, looking for system bottlenecks and opportunities to increase efficiency.

The son of public school teachers, you earned your B.S. at Ithaca College before completing your master's in health services administration at the George Washington University. Within weeks of starting graduate school, you attended an on-campus talk by Hillary Clinton on national health care reform. Inspired, you introduced yourself to Clinton, which eventually led to your landing a volunteer internship at the White House, where you worked from 1994 to 1995 on the national health care reform initiative.

It was in 2004 that you began your tenure with Hartford HealthCare, serving in executive and operational roles at MidState Medical Center in Meriden and at Hartford Hospital, where you were named president and CEO in 2011. You became Hartford HealthCare's chief operating officer in 2013, its president in 2016, and CEO in 2019. But before your career path wound back to your home state, you held leadership roles in health systems in Detroit and New York City—including on September 11, 2001, at the hospital located closest to the World Trade Center. Your many experiences have tested you, prepared you, and helped you to become the visionary health care leader you are today.

During the past 15 months, you have provided a steady hand in navigating the unprecedented challenges of a global pandemic, including serving as co-chair of the Connecticut Governor's Health System Response Team. As Forbes magazine highlighted last summer, you said that when it comes to health care, after COVID-19, it should not be a matter of going back to normal. As you put it: "With careful planning, attention to data, use of technology, and the inclusive elevation of voices from our most at-risk communities, we have an opportunity to create a new normal that sets the pace for the country."

During your nearly three-decade career, you have been recognized widely within the health care industry and were appointed to the American Hospital Association's Health Systems Council. You have been honored for your leadership by the National Association of Hispanic Healthcare Executives and by Modern Healthcare as one of the top 12 industry leaders in the nation. You are a former member of the Board of Trustees of the George Washington University and a current member of its President's Advisory Council. Additionally, you serve as a director of the Connecticut Science Center, Connecticut Public Broadcasting Inc., Hartford Promise, and the Connecticut Hospital Association.

In recognition of your distinguished career and enormous contributions to the field of health care, I have the honor of presenting you, Jeffrey A. Flaks, for the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

2021 HONORAND

Philip O. Geier

Doctor of Humane Letters

Your belief that all of us must build cross-cultural skills and attitudes of mutual respect—here in the United States and around the world—has inspired countless international learning experiences. Your commitment to fostering citizen diplomacy and international understanding through education serves as a model to us all. And your vision, which has helped to create a network of future leaders around the world, is legendary.

Your distinguished career spans university teaching and leadership positions at foundations, nonprofits, and educational institutions. The Davis United World College Scholars Program, of which you are executive director, is the world's largest privately funded international scholarship program. You co-founded this transformational program in 2000 with philanthropist Shelby M.C. Davis and, since then, more than 10,000 students from 150-plus countries have pursued their undergraduate degrees at nearly 100 colleges and universities across the country.

Trinity is proud to be among those institutions, and Davis UWC Scholars certainly have contributed to the college's efforts to be more globally minded and engaged. Here at Trinity, a total of 36 Davis UWC Scholars from 26 countries—including five Davis UWC Scholars in the Class of 2021—will have received Trinity College degrees. And the Davis UWC Scholar Program is growing here by leaps and bounds: during the 2021–22 academic year, Trinity anticipates 40 Davis UWC Scholars to be enrolled across all four class years.

In 2007, you created the Projects for Peace initiative, which you continue to run, also funded by Davis philanthropy. Projects for Peace enables college students to design and implement projects anywhere around the globe, empowering them to help to shape a better, more peaceful world. Altogether, more than 1,500 students have been awarded summer grants of $10,000 each to carry out their own projects. In the nearly 15 years since Projects for Peace began, Trinity has received funding for 19 student projects—two of which will take place this summer, one in Belgrade, Serbia, and another in northern Argentina. Thanks to Projects for Peace grants, Trinity students have—to offer a sampling—brought solar lighting to Nepal, promoted interfaith harmony in Pakistan, established a technology and study center at a jail in Bolivia, and developed a rainwater harvesting project in Trinidad and Tobago.

What ignited your spark in the first place and set you on the path to accomplishing such meaningful work? You earned your B.A. from Williams College and both your M.A. and Ph.D. from the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University. Your passion for international educational exchange grew out of the year you spent teaching at the Sorbonne in Paris as a Fulbright lecturer in 1977–78, when you also were sponsored by the American Embassy to give talks on American culture in France.

Clearly, the impact of your unprecedented leadership in international education is felt not only at Trinity but also on campuses across the United States and around the globe. When members of Trinity's faculty and staff talk about outstanding students—those who have made an especially lasting impression at Trinity throughout the years—Davis UWC Scholars and students involved in Projects for Peace are always included.

In recognition of your vision and profound influence, as well as your achievements as one of this country's preeminent leaders in international education, I have the honor of presenting you, Philip O. Geier, for the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

2021 HONORAND

Katharine Hayhoe
Doctor of Science

“One of the world’s most influential communicators on climate change,” “a champion of the earth,” and “a climate explainer who stays above the storm.” These are a few of the ways in which you, Katharine Hayhoe, have been described.

You serve as The Nature Conservancy’s chief scientist, and at Texas Tech University you are a Paul W. Horn Distinguished Professor and the Political Science Endowed Professor in Public Policy and Public Law. An accomplished atmospheric scientist, your research currently focuses on developing and applying high-resolution climate projections to understand what climate change means for people and the natural environment.

It was at the University of Toronto, while completing your B.Sc. in physics and astronomy, that a class in climate science changed the trajectory of your life. You headed next to the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, where you earned your M.S. and Ph.D. in atmospheric sciences. Your prolific work has resulted in more than 85 peer-reviewed publications and more than 150 journal articles, abstracts, chapters, and reports. High-profile reports on which you served as lead author include the U.S. Global Change Research Program’s Second, Third, and Fourth National Climate Assessments.

Publications including The New York Times, Wired, and O Magazine have published your writing, and you host and produce the PBS digital series Global Weirding: Climate, Politics, and Religion. Together with your husband, Pastor Andrew Farley, you wrote A Climate for Change: Global Warming Facts for Faith-Based Decisions. Your latest book, Saving Us: A Climate Scientist’s Case for Hope and Healing in a Divided World, will be published in September 2021 by Simon & Schuster.

You have received numerous honors and accolades, including being recognized as one of Foreign Policy’s 100 Global Thinkers in 2019, Fortune magazine’s World’s 50 Greatest Leaders in 2017, and one of the 100 Most Influential People by Time magazine in 2014. A native of Canada, you were named Canadian Woman of the Year in 2019 by Chatelaine. Also in 2019, your “stalwart commitment to quantifying the effects of climate change” and your dedication to “bridging the broad, deep gap between scientists and Christians” were lauded by the United Nations as you received its highest environmental honor, Champion of the Earth, in the category of science and innovation.

You serve on key advisory committees for organizations including the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Smithsonian National Museum of Natural History, and the Earth Science Women’s Network. You are well-known for inspiring diverse audiences to take individual steps toward minimizing their carbon footprints as well as joining collective action to address climate change. Your TED talk, “The most important thing you can do to fight climate change: talk about it,” has nearly four million views. Whether speaking at an international conference, a local church, or the White House, you work tirelessly to explain and depolarize climate change. You do so by crunching the data, analyzing the models, and quantifying the impacts, as well as by adding a dash of humor in making your points. By way of example, you have said: “Gravity doesn’t care whether you believe in it or not, but if you step off a cliff, you’re going down.”

In recognition of your extraordinary accomplishments and leadership in addressing one of our most daunting global challenges, climate change, I have the honor of presenting you, Katharine Hayhoe, for the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa.

2021 HONORAND

Philip S. Khoury, Class of 1971
Doctor of Humane Letters

Academic leader, scholar of the Middle East, champion of the arts and sciences, and devoted Trinity College alumnus. You, Philip Khoury, have had a profound influence in higher education throughout your 40-year career.

As associate provost and Ford International Professor of History at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), you hold a pivotal role at one of the world’s top institutions of higher education. You are a true proponent of interdisciplinary collaboration and of the MIT motto, mens et manus, meaning “mind and hand.” As you have said: “Studying the arts, in combination with the extraordinary discoveries in science and engineering, prepares ... students to make creative and innovative contributions in multiple fields.”

Born and raised in Washington, D.C., you completed a self-designed Arab studies major at Trinity, which included studying at the American University of Beirut during your junior year. You earned a Ph.D. in history and Middle Eastern studies from Harvard University. In 1981, you were hired by MIT’s history faculty and 10 years later appointed dean of the university’s School of Humanities, Arts, and Social Sciences (SHASS). In 2002, you were named Kenan Sahin Dean of SHASS, a position you held until 2006, when you were named associate provost. You have served for the past 30 years in MIT’s leadership.

Your associate provost responsibilities include overseeing and promoting non-curricular arts programs and initiatives, such as the MIT Museum and the List Visual Arts Center. You also focus on MIT’s strategic planning around international education and research. You work across time zones to identify hubs of innovation—or future hubs of innovation—and to forge mutually beneficial partnerships and collaborations.

As a historian who specializes in the Middle East’s political and social history, you have authored and edited many books, including Syria and the French Mandate (Princeton University Press, 1987), which won the George Louis Beer Prize of the American Historical Association. You have received prestigious fellowships, including from the Thomas J. Watson Foundation, the Fulbright-Hays Foundation, and The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. You are an elected fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

MIT has bestowed multiple accolades upon you, including naming you an honorary member of its alumni association, and you hold an honorary doctorate from EARTH University in Costa Rica. You serve as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the American University of Beirut and are an overseer of Koç University in Istanbul. You have been a director of the Harvard Cooperative Society and a member of the Academic Research Council in Singapore. Further, you are a trustee emeritus of the National Humanities Center and a past trustee of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

At Trinity, you have been a dedicated leadership volunteer in numerous capacities, including two decades on the Board of Trustees—from 2000 through 2019—with 12 of those years as vice chair. Your fellow trustees, many with careers outside of academia, have been ever grateful for the insights you have shared from your experiences in higher education. In 2006, Trinity honored you with its Alumni Medal for Excellence, given to those who have made significant contributions to their professions, to their communities, and to Trinity. Today, your ongoing service to your alma mater includes helping lead the planning for Trinity’s Bicentennial Celebration, set to kick off in September 2022.

In recognition of your distinguished career and your unending contributions to academia—particularly your steadfast loyalty and service to Trinity College—I have the honor of presenting you, Philip S. Khoury, for the degree of Doctor of Humanities, honoris causa.

Greetings from the Trinity College Alumni Association

Eric S. Estes '91

XV

Alma Mater: "Neath the Elms"

(arranged by Robert Edward Smith)

The Trinity Pipes

'Neath the elms of our old Trinity,	College days are from care and sorrow free.
'Neath the elms of our dear old Trinity,	And oft will we seek in memory
No more shall we meet,	Those days that are past,
Our classmates to greet,	Far too joyous to last,
'Neath the elms of our old Trinity.	'Neath the elms of our old Trinity.

'Neath the elms of our old Trinity.	Then we'll sing to our old Trinity,
'Neath the elms of our dear old Trinity	To our dear old Alma Mater, Trinity;
Oh it's seldom we'll meet,	We're together today,
In the moonlight so sweet,	And tomorrow away,
'Neath the elms of our old Trinity.	Far away from our old Trinity.

On the hills of our old Trinity,
In the halls of our dear old Trinity,
There is bright merry cheer,
There are friends true and dear,
In the halls of our old Trinity.

The Academic Regalia

In 1895, a commission of leading American educators established the Intercollegiate Code pertaining to the academic costume. The color of the lining of the hood is that of the college or university conferring the degree. The edging of the hood and the tassel of the cap indicate the subject to which the degree pertains, in accordance with the following official designations for colleges and universities in the United States:

Agriculture	Maize
Arts, Letters, Humanities	White
Commerce, Accountancy, Business	Drab
Dentistry	Lilac
Economics	Copper
Education	Light blue
Engineering	Orange
Fine Arts, including Architecture	Brown
Forestry	Russet
Home Economics	Maroon
Journalism	Crimson
Law	Purple
Library Science	Lemon
Medicine	Green
Music	Pink
Nursing	Apricot
Oratory (Speech)	Silver gray
Pharmacy	Olive green
Philosophy	Dark blue
Physical Education	Sage green
Public Administration, including Foreign Service	Peacock blue
Public Health	Salmon pink
Science	Golden yellow
Social Work	Citron
Theology	Scarlet
Veterinary Science	Gray

Trinity College differs from the list at left because the colors of Trinity hoods were established prior to the formulation of the code. Following are the colors of the academic hoods symbolizing the honorary degrees conferred by Trinity:

Doctor of Canon Law Crimson, lined with black	Doctor of Laws Scarlet, lined with dark blue
Doctor of Divinity Scarlet, lined with black	Doctor of Music White, lined with pink
Doctor of Fine Arts White, lined with white and a red chevron	Doctor of Sacred Theology Scarlet, lined with blue and a gold chevron
Doctor of Humane Letters Scarlet, lined with purple	Doctor of Science Black, lined with light blue
Doctor of Letters Scarlet, lined with russet brown	Master of Music Black, lined with pink
Doctor of Humanities White, lined with dark crimson

The Owen Morgan Mace

The mace, which precedes the president in academic processions and is a symbol of executive powers, was presented to Trinity in 1950 in memory of Owen Morgan, Class of 1906, who served his alma mater as a member of the Board of Fellows, as a trustee, and as treasurer of the college. Historically, maces were first used as weapons in warfare and later became a symbol of the sovereign and his power. One of the first known uses of a mace by an educational institution was at Cambridge University in the 13th century. Today a number of colleges use the mace as a symbol of authority and of the power invested in the president by the faculty and trustees. The Morgan Mace is made of ebony, signifying endurance; bronze, meaning power; and gold, symbolizing dignity and glory. It is 44 inches long and weighs 20 pounds. The fluted staff represents the various components of an enduring education. It is bound by a gold ribbon, inscribed with the names of every Trinity president. On the head, or urn, of the mace are six seals of the sources of life and growth of this college: the Great Seal of the United States; the Seal of the State of Connecticut; the Charter Oak; the original seal of the City of Hartford; the Washington Coat of Arms; and the seal of the Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut. Surmounting the Gothic urn is the Trinity College seal crowned by an eagle about to take flight, symbolizing the freedom and power of an educated person.

The Presidential Collar

The collar, which is worn on ceremonial occasions, is the visible symbol of the president's high office and authority. The collar was presented to the college in 1953 by former President G. Keith Funston, Class of 1932, in memory of his grandmother, Maria Briggs Keith. The chain symbolically links modern higher education with the universities of yesteryear. The golden seal of the Trinity president hangs from the collar, which is fashioned of 20 replicas of the Trinity elms and seven silver seals: the six reproduced in the mace and the Trinity College seal superimposed on a triangle representing the religious foundations of the college crowned by a sun signifying enlightenment. In the lower corners of the triangle are the Book and a pair of student's hands extended to receive it, symbolizing the desire of youth to receive an education.

The Luther-Roosevelt Long Walk Inscription

The inscription on a stone in front of the Fuller Arch at Northam Towers commemorates the visit in June 1918 of former U.S. President Theodore Roosevelt, who delivered an address the night before Commencement and received an honorary degree at the ceremony. The superstition holds that students who step on the stone may not graduate. As the Commencement procession passes over the stone every year, graduating seniors make a point of deliberately stepping on it.

Taking the theme of his address from Old Testament scripture, Roosevelt commented on the emptiness of boasting and its prejudicial effect on the conduct of World War I. He cited a passage from 1 Kings 20:11, in which the King of Israel responds to a boasting warrior, "Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off." The passage's Latin translation is inscribed in the stone. Roosevelt indicated that, in his estimation, thoughtless exaggeration of Americans' might had reinforced the German will to pursue the war. He reminded the approximately 5,000 people in the audience that much work remained to be done and that the country had to gear itself up for the supreme effort. Less than a month later, Roosevelt's youngest son, Quentin, was shot down in aerial combat in France.
